Magda E. Schaler M.P.H. : Smoking: Who Has the Right? (Contemporary Issues) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Smoking: Who Has the Right? (Contemporary Issues):

2 of 5 people found the following review helpful. Good essays on an important issue. By A Customer This book examines both sides of the current debate on tobacco. Issues covered in the book include whether tobacco companies should be found liable, whether people should be free to smoke, and the motivations of the anti-smoking movement.

Is cigarette smoking an addiction or a choice? Does society or the government have the right to decide who may smoke and where? Are there such things as "smoker's rights"? Unique and timely, this collection is the very best work on the subject from the leading experts in public policy, health, economics, law, sociology, psychology, and history, seeking answers to questions that divide the nation. Included are essays by George J. Annas, Gary S. Becker, Peter L. Berger, Richard Daynard, Antony Flew, Peter D. Jacobson, Stanton Glantz, Robert E. Goodin, Joseph R. Gusfield, Stephen J. Heishman, Graham E. Kelder, David A. Kessler, Mark Edward Lender, Stephen C. Littlechild, Rajendra Persaud, Robert N. Procter, David Ryder, Robert J. Samuelson, John Slade, Edward L. Sweda Jr., Robert W. Tollison, Richard E. Wagner, Lee S. Weinberg, Walter Williams, and Richard Vatz, among others.
