Austin Sarat : Studies in Law, Politics and Society before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Studies in Law, Politics and Society:

This volume of Studies in Law, Politics and Society brings together the work of scholars of several different generations and several different national contexts. The articles published here feature both cutting edge issues of major interest to policy makers and activists as well as those that address venerable issues in the interdisciplinary study of law. They illuminate family law, the way law deals with children, international human rights, and the way law deals with injury and damages claims.

This work for policymakers, activists, and scholars of international law presents six essays by international contributors, dealing with themes of family law, the way the law deals with children, and international human rights. Some subjects include counter-law and peace bonds, responding to diversity while protecting children, the construction of a children's court, wrongful birth claims in Israel, international law and spatial injustice in New Orleans, and judges' capital sentencing decisions. The book is distributed in North America by Turpin Distribution. -- Annotation 2014 Ringgold Inc. Portland, OR (protonview.com) About the Author Austin Sarat - Amherst College, NY, USA
