an estate with 10 children I was obviously looking for ways to handle the estate and keeping all things equal. This author gave multiple examples and suggestions and warning of what to expect. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Pure genius
By gailcnh This is a must-have for anyone who has parents, kids, or a houseful of stuff. Basically, everybody. She covers so many years of life - preparing to take care of elderly parents, managing their estate after they're gone, getting your own affairs in order. I loaned this to some family members, bought extra copies for others, and recommended to many friends. It's that good. 3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. ... starting on your own collections) this book gave the best info of the 4 books I bought
By Cindy Weckter I read several books on downsizing you parents estate (or starting on your own collections) this book gave the best info of the 4 books I bought. It is helpful to see why we hold on to these things and how we can learn to let go when it becomes more than we want to handle.

A practical guide to advise Baby Boomers how to deal with the daunting task of facing a parents' eventual passing as it relates to residential contents, heirlooms, and the often difficult family interactions and feuds that accompany them. With fascinating stories and comprehensive checklists, professional estate liquidator Julie Hall walks Baby Boomers through the often painful challenge of dividing the wealth and property of their parents' lifetime accumulation of stuff. From preparation while the parent is still living through compassionately helping them empty the family home, The Estate Lady gives invaluable tips on negotiating the inevitable disputes, avoiding exploitation from scam artists, and eventually closing the chapter of their lives in a way that preserves relationships and maximizes value of assets.

About the Author Julie Hall, known as The Estate Lady, is a professional estate contents expert and certified personal property appraiser who specializes in estate liquidation.
