

The Changing Landscape of Food Governance: Public and Private Encounters

Tetty Havinga, Frans van Waarden, Donal Casey
*ebooks | Download PDF | ePub | DOC | audiobook

#6561321 in Books 2015-05-27Original language:English 9.50 x 6.50 x .751, #File Name: 1784715409288 pages | File size: 76.Mb

Tetty Havinga, Frans van Waarden, Donal Casey : The Changing Landscape of Food Governance: Public and Private Encounters before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Changing Landscape of Food Governance: Public and Private Encounters:

This book makes a major contribution to our understanding of how significantly food governance is changing at both the national and international levels. What is particularly noteworthy about this volume is how clearly and comprehensively it integrates the important public and private dimensions of food governance.' - David Vogel, University of California, Berkeley, USA

This book examines the changing landscape of food governance. Within this landscape, both public and private regulators increasingly encounter one another as markets have become more globalized. While these encounters may often be planned, long-term and lead to positive relationships and outcomes, they can also be accidental collisions that result in antagonistic relationships and crisis. Empirically, this book investigates these public and private encounters in food governance and the institutional challenges they raise. Importantly, it also explores the public policy responses to these issues at the national, supranational and transnational levels, and investigates new forms of private food regulation. Against this empirical backdrop, the contributors provide insights into broader analytical issues that have animated regulatory governance scholarship such as the legitimacy and effectiveness of public and private regulation, the distribution of power in regulatory arrangements, the interaction of layers and networks of regulation and regulatory responses to crisis. This comprehensive book will be of great value to those interested in gaining an interdisciplinary understanding of the empirical area of food governance and the analytical issues of regulatory governance. Contributors include: G. Abels, J.P. Burns, F. Casarosa, D. Casey, N. Collins, V. Constant LaForce, R. van Dalen, G. Enticott, E. Fagotto, D. Fuchs, M. Gobbato, J.-C. Gottwald, T. Havinga, A. Kalfagianni, A. Kobusch, R. Lee, J. Li, P. Oosterveer, H. van der Voort, F. van Waarden, X. Wang

'The Changing Landscape of Food Governance: Public and Private Encounters is an interdisciplinary book, edited by three scholars with expertise in law examining the recent transformation of food governance. . . . This volume is a good survey of the current food governance landscape. . . . Overall this volume is organized, well-written, and a persuasive and enjoyable read.' -- Agriculture and Human Values

'This book makes a major contribution to our understanding of how significantly food governance is changing at both the national and international levels. What is particularly noteworthy about this volume is how clearly and comprehensively it integrates the important public and private dimensions of food governance.' -- David Vogel, University of California, Berkeley, USA

About the Author Edited by Tetty Havinga, Associate Professor in Sociology of Law, Faculty of Law, Radboud University Nijmegen, Frans van Waarden, Professor of Policy and Organization Studies, Faculty of Social Sciences and University College, Utrecht University, the Netherlands and Donal Casey, Lecturer in Law, Kent Law School, University of Kent, UK