Mr. Fabrice is a young Cameroonian, a poet, and playwright, who just arrives America, a country that had witnessed the feminist movement and civil right movement and activist. He has not got papers and has to stay with one of his classmate who picks him up at the airport the day he arrives. However, he discovers with time that his friend with whom he has to stay has been influenced by the feminist movement and the law system that she has become addicted to this new culture of life. Life will later turn out a tragedy for this one time good friend because his friend under pressure and lust for money will want to influence Fabrice to marry an American to his detriment. Mr. Fabrice later falls in love with one Cameroonian girl, Angel who even though living under the feminist laws, has not been influenced by such laws and decides to marry her. His life is full of thorns as the Miss Asunder using the feminist laws will want to do away with him at all cost and to marry him. He faces the three temptations of Christ prior to his marriage. Every attempt of Miss Asunder to do away with the relationship and to marry him fails, and on the eve of Fabrice's wedding, Miss Asunder invites him to her house and threatens him to either have a sexual affair with her for her to be pregnant, so that she will later use it as means to do away with the marriage through child support, or she calls the police against him for attempted rape. Mr. Fabrice stands his grounds, Miss Asunder calls the police against Fabrice, he is arrested and his trial is on the day he is to get married, he comes to court with his wife as if going for his marriage, after the trial, he is found not guilty and the judge decides to marry both Fabrice and Angel in court . . . love, suspense, intrigue, spirituality, poetry, theological controversies and many more. What happens, find out . . .
