Donna Broom J.D. : The Funny Thing About a Last Will before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Funny Thing About a Last Will:

When people die they leave wills that are meant to transfer their property to whomever they want. Sometimes people do more and leave last words of what they thought of people. Other people leave their property to pets, foundations or organizations and purposely leave nothing to their loved ones. This book comprises a collection of various types of wills that have been left throughout history.
