Edward Castle : The Unjust "Justice": Getting the Truth Out before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Unjust "Justice": Getting the Truth Out:

In his late teens, Henry Carmel was stricken with schizophrenia—a life-altering mental illness characterized by tormenting voices, impaired judgment, and acute paranoia. In 1996, Henry was attacked by a huge dog. Fearing for his life, he panicked and killed the animal. Despite test results and reports supplied by an unbiased veterinary pathologist, the corrupt county veterinarian contradicted the pathologist and aggravated the incident with a false theory. At the hands of a power-hungry deputy district attorney (Dda), Henry was prosecuted. The jury remained unaware of his illness, so he was sentenced to prison rather than the hospitalization he needed. Expecting acquittal, the defense agreed to the nondisclosure of the illness. As desired by the Dda, Henry was sentenced to serve an exaggerated prison term. When his sentence was complete, his illness was disclosed. He was certified as a mentally disordered offender (Mdo) and kept hospitalized year after year. In the years after his trial, Henry's condition improved; however, at annual hearings the Dda and judges ignored Henry's successes and extended his confinement each year. This was abusive and unjust. No socially accepted rules of ethics were followed. The Unjust Justice is the story of a young man who, because of the social stigma that prevails over individuals plagued with schizophrenia, lost his freedom within an abusive system of injustice.

About the AuthorThe author lives in Southern California. He holds a Master's Degree from the University of California, Berkeley. For over 15 years he avidly followed the intricacy of the mental health system and its conflicting relationship with a judicial system that criminalizes the mentally ill, resulting in injustice to them and aggravating their illness, with devastating consequences for their rest of their lives.
