Law in flash are always my go-to for quick reviewing and studying. I like that the explanations for the answers cite cases as well because it helps me go back to my own class notes and then I can add whatever important point my Professor talked about in class to my outline.

Law in a Flash is great for some classes, wretched for others. Mechanical classes (future interests, wills and trusts, contracts, criminal law, torts) work well with the flashcard approach. Abstract classes (con law) do not. The civil procedure set is useless.
