Make Your Own Will (Self-Counsel Legal):

If you want to ensure that your assets or belongings are passed on according to your wishes rather than by state law, you must have a will. This book is written by a lawyer and explains in simple terms why and how you should draw up a will in the state of Washington. Examples of common will forms are included, along with a discussion of the advantages and disadvantages of community property agreements. Some of the common questions addressed are: What is a will? What are the requirements for a valid, effective will? What is an executor? Can you disinherit your spouse or children? What is a community property agreement and how does it work? What are the tax advantages of a will? What happens to your assets if you leave no will or agreement to dispose of your property? Also available from Self-Counsel Press: Have You Made Your Will? Forms Kit for Washington and Oregon.
